Not illustrated. 1882 Excerpt: . . . should be removed from the slag, and then deoxidized and recarbonized in the usual manner. When an open hearth is furnished with a lime lining, and the metal is held at a high temperature in the presence of a highly Tjasic bath, until the silicon and carbon are eliminated and the silicic acid is engaged as silicates, and carbonic oxide disappears, and the slag is still sufficiently basic, the phosphorus is rapidly eliminated and remains in the slag as a phosphate of iron, the metal may then be treated with ferro-manganese or spiegel, for deoxygenizing and recarbureting it. In both the Bessemer and the open hearth practice it is desirable that the metal should be removed from the presence of the phosphoritic slag before the ferro-manganese or spiegel is added, as the chemical reactions which take place when these elements are added, tend to carry a portion of the phosphorus from the slag back into the metal. The quantity of slag required will depend on its degree of basi(purity and on the amount of silicon and phosphorus to be eliminated, the essential requirement being that the slag shall possess sufficient basic material to engage all the silicic acid as silicates, and all the phosphoric acid as phosphates. To secure these requirements in excess, the weight of the slag will range from 25 to 30 per cent. of the weight of the metal. In the economy of the new basic dephosphorizing process, it is desirable to...
