Excerpt: .protection may consist of automatic sprinklers located over windows or other openings. It may be a device which will send a curtain of water over an exposed wall. In general, however, the outside protection consists in placing water mains and fire plugs or hydrants in such places that they will adequately cover the entire risk. Good hose should be kept in the vicinity of all fire hydrants, enclosed in such a way that it will be safe from the weather and yet be quickly available in case of need. The watchman should be quick and intelligent. He should, on discovering a fire, immediately turn in the alarm and then try to extinguish the flame. The efficiency of the outside fire protection, aside from the automatic devices, depends upon three things: the water supply, the effectiveness of the watchman and firemen, and the efficiency of the hose. Great care must be taken of fire hose, because cheap hose is likely to break at the most critical moment, and is never dependable. Fire underwriters and insurance companies inspect the various makes of hose on the market. On good tried material they set their stamp of approval, so that no one need unwittingly use defective material. The proper way to keep the hose is to place it in houses installed within the vicinity of the hydrants or fire plugs. Here also fire underwriters make it easy for one to use the best plans because they have drawn...
